Official Program Description:

International Studies Minor (18 semester hours)

International Studies is a multidisciplinary minor designed to complement any major by adding international perspectives and competencies to any chosen field of specialization. It provides a broad appreciation of contemporary global issues such as war and terrorism, human rights, refugees and migration, international trade, and climate change. Students will take two International Studies core courses and choose electives carrying the "A" and "E" designations in the REAL curriculum for their remaining courses. Through these learning experiences, students acquire important skills and knowledge to prepare them for success in future careers and a life of active world citizenship in our globalized society

Requirements

Requirements for the Minor in International Studies total 18 semester hours, including the following:

Introductory Course (3 credits)

INST 101 - Introduction to International Studies

Introduction to International Studies is the foundation course in International Studies emphasizing the foundational knowledge and core skills necessary to analyze and appreciate the global experience and world issues from a multidisciplinary perspective.

Capstone Course (3 credits)

Take one of the following two courses:

INST 488 - International Studies: Senior Project

This course is a capstone experience that will ideally be completed during the student's last two years of study at Radford University, and it demonstrates the culmination of the international knowledge and experiences gained in the minor coursework. An International Studies: Senior Project may be a research paper, a work of art or multi-media presentation, a film, or a series of articles. The senior project proposal must be submitted to the Director of the International Studies minor for approval in the semester prior to the student's enrollment. Students must secure the commitment of a faculty member to supervise their senior project. They are encouraged to give a public presentation of their work in some forum or public meeting. Grades for the capstone experience must be B- or better to satisfy this requirement.

INST 490 – Capstone Seminar on Global Issues

This course is a capstone course which enables students to synthesize all that they have learned in the International Studies minor, building on the foundation of the course Introduction to International Studies (INST 101) and other electives. In this senior seminar, participants will learn to analyze international trends, global events, and complex challenges facing the world such as sustainable development, global capitalist economy, globalization, human rights, corruption, poverty, gender equality, pandemics, armed conflicts, international terrorism, refugees and migration, climate change and global warming. Once the data is received in the department, the department’s assessment committee will review the data to determine if corrective action is necessary. If needed, the assessment committee will develop an improvement plan in combination with faculty teaching classes in this area and the department’s curriculum committee. The agreed upon changes will be incorporated into the classes. The department’s assessment committee will then continue monitoring the collected assessment data to determine the effectiveness of the corrective action and determine further actions if necessary.

 Learning Goal: To examine the context and interactions of culture(s) and/or behavior(s).

 The International Studies minor pairs core courses in Cultural and Behavioral Analysis with elective courses in Cultural and Behavioral Analysis and Humanistic or Artistic Expression to give students the ability to understand interdisciplinary issues like sustainable development, globalization, human rights, corruption, poverty, gender equality, pandemics, armed conflicts, international terrorism, refugees and migration, and climate change.

Once the data is received in the department, the department's assessment committee will review the data to determine if corrective action is necessary. If needed, the assessment committee will develop an improvement plan in combination with faculty teaching classes in this area and the department's curriculum committee. The agreed upon changes will be incorporated into the classes. The department's assessment committee will then continue monitoring the collected assessment data to determine the effectiveness of the corrective action and determine further actions if necessary.

I am not sure how to fill out the box... is it asking if PEAC is required for our degree program... does that mean the minor? That is how I will interpret it.

I wanted to get your formal e-okay to include PEAC 200 in the International Studies minor.

If you could confirm the course will be lettered "A."

And, lastly, could you fill out the box below on the course, so I can append to our International Studies minor REAL alignment form?

Thanks so much.
Have a great day.

Dear Beth:

Could you just respond to this e-mail with a "yes, it's okay to include SOCY 121 in the INST minor"? That way, I can scan your e-mail as proof that you're on board with us using the course for the curriculum and REAL committees' reference. I think I was able to do everything with the check boxes, so I don't need you to do anything with that. I think we just need an "okay" from you at this point.

Thanks so much,

Dear Charles:

It's time to submit our forms to revise the International Studies minor in keeping with REAL.

We'd like to ask your permission to use GEOG 101, 102, 103, and 305 in the International Studies minor.

I see in the database that they are all listed as "A" courses. Do you plan to submit "A" forms for each?

If you are willing to allow us to use those courses, please indicate your okay in an e-mail to me.

Also, please fill out the REAL form checkboxes, pasted below, for each course.

Thanks so much.
Let me know if you have any questions or concerns,
Paige

Dear Paul:

We've talked a couple of times about including some of the RELN courses for the INST minor.

I wanted to formally ask you if we could include: RELN 112 World Religions, 350 Religion in India, and 360 Religion in China and Japan.

I see them all listed as E's in the wanna-label database all the departments contributed to. Could you just confirm they'll all be "E's?"

If you could e-confirm that they're okay for us to use and fill out the following REAL check boxes on each course, I'd be most grateful.

Let me know if you have any questions or concerns.
Best wishes and THANKS.

Yes, this should be fine. We are/have submitted the class as an "E" General Education designation. Unfortunately, the portion of the submission form that you pasted below is not interactive. However, here is the information so that you can fill out your own form. I suspect that you can use this e-mail as my signature ...but if you need me to sign something later, let me know.

Yes, you may include ART216 which will be coded as A (and required for our programs as well) and ARTH316, which will be coded as E, and again required for one of our concentrations.

Both are offered at least once a year (checked below) although this year, I taught a section of 316 in the fall and Bradbury is doing one in the spring. We don't do the same content.

Also, I wanted to ask you to fill out these "course boxes" for those two courses, so the REAL committee knows how often the courses will be taught, etc.

Dear Sarah:

I found you listed as Director of the Women's Studies minor. Is that still one of your hats?

We would like to include WGST 200 in the International Studies minor.

Do you believe it would have enough international content to be included? (it would have to be in every course, not just certain instructors.)

I see it listed as an "A" in the wanna-label database chairs/directors filled out. Have you done the paperwork to make the course an "A?"

If we've checked every box above and you're willing to allow us use the course, could you give your formal approval in an e-mail and fill out the check boxes below on the course? That will allow me to submit the course with the INST minor revision.

Let me know if you have any questions or concerns.

Thanks and all the best,
Paige
